An award-winning filmmaker, archivist and the founder of Film Heritage Foundation in Mumbai, Dungarpur will speak on the colossal loss of India's audiovisual heritage, the lack of recognition for film as an art form and an integral part of our cultural fabric, the urgent need to preserve what remains of this heritage as well as what we continue to create, and what it takes to preserve and restore our film legacy. The lecture will be enriched with images and film clips as we learn about film preservation and restoration, an unrecognized cause that should be declared a cultural emergency.
